

EVA COOK JONES
EDUCATOR OF THE YEAR AWARD
2009 Nomination Form

This award honors an educator who has "gone above and beyond" the requirements of his/her profession to raise awareness and recognize the challenges that arise in educating a person with a disability. Eva Cook Jones was instrumental in starting the first class for children with cerebral palsy at the SCSU Campus Lab School. This made it possible for children to attend school and receive attention to their special needs. As a result of her efforts, many of her students went on to become successful in their daily lives.

This award honors Eva's dedication to teaching students with special needs and will honor an educator who exemplifies the qualities and dedication that Eva portrayed. This person truly makes a difference in the lives of their students with special needs. This award is intended for people involved in the educational system at any level. (i.e. teachers, para-professionals, administrators) . A $200 cash award will be awarded to the recipient.
